Lee Elliott

Lee Elliott is the creator of wisdom based management training focused on improving workplace cultures. He has worked with over 130 companies, achieving striking results for both for the organization and for the people.

Prior to this endeavor, Lee was the Vice President of Human Resources for 29 years at Saint Francis Medical Center in Grand Island, Nebraska. During that time, he and his colleagues won a variety of national and international awards for their work that involved creating a work environment that attracted job applicants and retained employees once hired. They also won awards for teamwork and for recruiting. As a result of their efforts, job vacancy fell and stayed at 2%, employee satisfaction was top in the nation—twice, and the total number of applicants tripled.

Andrew Johnson

Andrew Johnson, MEd, is the co-founder of Level Nine Learning, an instructional design company focused on the creation of custom eLearning training tools. He has over 15 years of experience working across the healthcare, education, and technology fields for a variety of startups, research institutions, and Fortune 500 organizations

Background:

What is Wisdom Based Management

Applying knowledge acquired from recent research, much of it from the field of positive psychology, that reflects:

- Practical knowledge of life, including ability to give good advice about relationships
- Prosocial attitudes, including compassion, empathy, warmth, altruism, and a sense of fairness
- Self-awareness and understanding, including introspection, insight, and intuition
- Dealing effectively with uncertainty
- Self-control, emotional stability
- Tolerance and being non-judgmental
- Openness to new experience
- Spirituality (not necessarily religion)
- A sense of humor
